

Movie Reflections

Black Panther

T'Challa returns home to Wakanda to inherit the throne as the King because his father has died. Yet this is challenged and we are taken on an adventure of T'Challa journey to stand against his enemies, journey his grief, responsibilities and witness his fight for what he loves and desires to protect.

Wakanda

Wakanda is a beautiful land. If you could create a homeland of your own what would it look like?

Take some time to be creative and draw/collage/express some of what you imagine.

What top 5 adventure opportunities would you want the people of your homeland to have?

Go Beyond

T'Challa's sister challenges him with this statement, "Just because it works doesn't mean it can't be improved"

What do you think works but could be better in your life, your school/college/workplace or home?

If you could improve the world in one way what would it be and why?

Go Far

Adventure has been described as 'not where you go, but who you go with'. T'Challa's father shares with him the importance that he will struggle so it is important who he has alongside him.

Who would you say are the people who you need to adventure through your life with and why?

What qualities do you look for in a friend? Do you have those qualities?

In your created homeland , what three values would you like people to live by and why?